The quality of stored spent wash in kuccha lagoon is not fit either for ferti-irrigation or one time controlled land application, hence, should not be utilized for the said purpose.	The kaccha pit lagoons on site have been scrapped and leveled as per the directions. The photographs of the same are enclosed.
3	You shall provide 30 days storage facility in the form of impervious lagoon for storage of spent wash by 31 st May-07. The design and construction of the lagoon shall be strictly as per MPCB/CPCB guidelines, which inter-alia include HDPE liner (250 micron as per BIS specifications), and pitched by brick with cement mortar so as to prevent leakages.	Industry is provided 30 days spentwash storage tank having capacity 60 MLD with 500 micron thick HDPE liner provided at site. The photographs enclosed.
4.	You shall revamp/reconstruct the existing compost yard by 31 st May-07, as per MPCB/CPCB guidelines, which inter-alia include HDPE liner (250 micron as per BIS specifications), leachate collection system, brick on edge, test well, fencing etc. The composting method shall be fully automatic, where auto spray of spent wash and it's mixing shall be simultaneously carried out	The existing compost yard has been totally revamped by constructing a new 2.5 acres with 250 micron HDPE and RCC lining along with leachate management system as per CPCB norms. The photographs of the compost yard are enclosed.
5.	You shall reduced the volume of spent wash/ Rectified spirit productions commensurate with the availability of pressmud (filler material) for composting, by upgrading the existing manufacturing technology as well as reducing the spentwash volume after bio-digester by adopting various techniques like- nano filtration, concentration, etc. This shall be achieved by Nov. 2007. As the existing 15 KLPD batch process plant is not viable, you should scrap the same and switch over to continuous process plant of higher capacity by 31 st Dec. 2008.	The industry has modified the distillery set up and upgraded. There under, the previous batch type plant is changed and now a continuous fermentation process plant is installed. Also the Reboiler installed for spentwash to reduce the volume. The photographs of the changes made in the fomenters are enclosed.
6.	You shall achieve zero discharge of effluent in surface water by Nov. 2007 by utilization of 100% spent wash in scientific manner	As the industry has changed the process batch to continuous type. The volume of spent wash generation will less. Industry also provided reboiler system to reduce
