In other non-critical processes, they are already using about 80% of recycled water. In past several years, they have taken various steps to reduce it water consumption from 30000 CMD to 17000 CMD whereas in the same period production quantity doubled. ➤ Further, in the absence of any viable technology for purifying water suitable for process use, recycling additional quantity of water is not a feasible option for business due to strict quality requirement of year. The committee further noted the ICT report in which reported that, the treated effluent cannot be recycled as it may still severely interfere in washing considerations and affect the yarn quality adversely.
